Finding Your Online Voice: Stories Told by Experienced Online Educators

Finding Your Online Voice: Stories Told by Experienced Online Educators

Finding Your Online Voice offers a thought-provoking discussion of innovative approaches to technology-based distance education. Editor J. Michael Spector focuses on how highly experienced teachers conceptualize and organize online classes. Best practices and guidelines for effective online teaching as well as a set of instructor skills specific to online learning environments are featured in the volume.

Distinguished researchers recount stories from a richly detailed, personal viewpoint on topics such as:

- *teaching orientations and philosophies;
- *approaches to learning and instruction;
- *orientation to and uses of technology;
- *models and methods of technology-based teaching; and
- *reflections and self-assessments.

This work is appropriate for professors, students, and professional practitioners working in the areas of distance education and educational technology. It is intended as a primary resource in courses on technology integration.
