Tratado de Pediatría. Vol. IV Alfonso Delgado Rubio

[Text is in Spanish] A la hora de analizar los problemas que la medicina infante-juvenil, tanto clínica como preventiva, tiene planteados en el mundo actual, es obligado que en esta consideración se tenga en cuenta si se trata de países desarrollados o de países en vías de desarrollo, ya que como se tendrá ocasión de ver, son radicalmente distintos. Las diferencias surgen, en primer lugar, respecto a la población que se considere. El crecimiento de la población mundial ha sido progresivo y se calcula que en el comienzo de esta era (J.C.) ascendía a unos 260 millones de habitantes. En el año 1000 se estima en 280 millones, es decir, en un milenio el incremento fue muy poco significativo y ascendía a 430 millones en el año 1500 (d.J.C.). A mediados del siglo XVIII, la población mundial estimada era de 730 millones y en el año 1900 ascendía a 1.670 millones. El incremento a lo largo del siglo XX, a pesar de las guerras, ha sido extraordinario como lo muestra el hecho de que en 1950 la población mundial era de 2.500 millones de habitantes; en 1960 de 3.000 millones y para el año 2000 el cálculo era de 6.000 millones de personas en el planeta y en torno a 7.000 millones en 2013. Entre los logros académicos y profesionales del director, el profesor Alfonso Delgado Rubio es: Especialista en Pediatría y Puericultura por las Universidades de Génova y de Navarra. Doctor en Medicina por las Universidades de Génova y de Navarra (Premio Extraordinario). Profesor Adjunto Numerario. Ministerio de Educación y Ciencia. 1974. Director del Departamento de Pediatría de la Universidad de Navarra. 1972-1977. Profesor Agregado Numerario. Universidad de Sevilla. 1979. Catedrático Numerario. Universidad del País Vasco. 1981-2009. Visiting Professor en George Washington University. EE.UU. 1989-1990. Profesor visitante del Instituto Tecnológico de Monterrey (México) desde 2009.
